ALDOM'S

PATENT SPRING

BIRD PERCH,

(Adjusted to any cage.)

First Diplomas awarded at the American Institute, and Brooklyn Industrial Institute, 1872.

100,000 of these Perches have been sold.

This Perch imitates the swaying of a limb or twig of a tree, thus giving to the bird its natural exercise, and keeps the bird in health and song. The Perch is so constructed, that in order to clean it, it can be removed from the outside of the cage.

Sent anywhere in the United States, upon the receipt of

FIFTEEN CENTS.

EDWARD ALDOM,

P. O. Box 85, BROOKLYN, E. D., N. Y.

The Commissioners demanded duties. It was refused, and they seized the vessel. The news spread over Boston, and the people resolved on resistance. The Commissioners were assailed by a mob, their houses damaged; and they were obliged to seek safety in Castle William, a small fortress about 3 miles S. E. from Boston.

Sept. 27.—British troops land in Boston, 700 strong, and with drums beating and colors flying, they marched to the Common.

Jan. 26.—British Parliament passes a bill requiring the arrest of offenders against the government to be sent to England for trial.

Dartmouth College, New Hampshire, received its charter. It was named from the Earl of Dartmouth, its benefactor.

American Philosophical Society, at Philadelphia, founded.

March 5.—Boston Massacre. A ropemaker quarreled with a soldier (March 2), and struck him. From this a fight ensued between several soldiers and ropemakers, in which the latter were beaten. A few evenings afterward (March 5), about 700 excited inhabitants assembled in the streets for the purpose of attacking the soldiers. A sentinel was attacked near the Custom House, when Captain Preston, commander of the guard, went to his rescue, with eight armed men, irritated and assailed by the mob, the soldiers fired upon the citizens, killed three and dangerously wounded five. The mob instantly retreated, when all the bells of the city rang an alarm, and in less than an hour several thousand exasperated citizens were on the streets. Gov. Hutchinson assured the people that justice would be done in the morning, and thus prevented further bloodshed. Capt. Preston and six of his men were tried and acquitted by a Boston jury. Two other soldiers were found guilty of manslaughter, and the troops were removed to Castle William.

April 12.—All duties except on tea repealed.

Sept. 30.—George Whitefield, founder of the Calvinistic Methodists, died, aged 56 years.

Regulators formed in North Carolina to resist British taxation and oppression. In 1768 the people of North Carolina were taxed $75,000 by Gov. Tryon to build him a house at Newbern.

May 16.—The Regulators subdued and dispersed by Gov. Tryon, after hanging six of the leaders.

June 9.—Destruction of the British armed schooner Gaspe. This vessel was stationed in Narragansett Bay to assist the Commissioners of Customs to enforce the revenue laws. The commander insisted that American navigators should lower their colors when they passed his vessel,

NATIONAL ODORLESS EXCAVATING APPARATUS,

Patented January 12th, 1875, April 25th, 1876, claim for their Apparatus:

First.—ECONOMY; as we furnish a complete Apparatus for a less price than the cost of Hose used by any other apparatus, being simple in construction, and requiring but two men to work it.

Second. CONVENIENCE; as the Apparatus is transported on any ordinary Wagon, Dray, or Truck, and the operation of Cleaning a Well or Sink is done in the yard in the day time, and there is nothing on the street to indicate that such operation is going on; consequently no one is annoyed by it.

Third.—RAPIDITY; the work can be done in half of the time of any other method, barrels having been frequently filled in half a minute.

Fourth.—UTILITY; the filled barrels can be transported by Wagon, Railroad, or Boat, emptied and returned.

This Apparatus is for sale to all parties; no Royalty.

April 30.—Col. Mulligan repulsed by the rebels at Fairmont, West Va., and the B. & O. R. R. bridges blown up at Fairmont and Cheat river.

May 1.—Gen. Carter with 5,000 men attacked the rebel forces at Monticello, under Pegram, driving them from the field.

Battle of Port Gibson. Gen. Grant defeated Gen. Bowen, with a loss of 1,550 men and 5 pieces of artillery.

May 2.—On the morning of the 17th of April, 1863, the 6th and 7th Illinois cavalry, 900 strong, under command of Col. Grierson, of the 6th Illinois, set out from Lagrange, Tenn., marched through the center of Mississippi, destroying as they went, railroads, bridges and stores of all kinds belonging to the rebels, in immense quantities. They reached Baton Rouge, La., on the evening of the 2d of May. They had traveled nearly 800 miles in 16 days. At several points the enemy made great attempts to capture them but failed. They brought into Baton Rouge over 1,000 horses and a large number of cattle; 500 negroes followed them.

May 3.—Battle of Fredericksburg. The second attempt to capture the rebel fortifications at Fredericksburg, Va., was made by the army of the Potomac under Gen. Hooker and failed. Severe skirmishing took place on Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2, but the main battle was fought on Sunday, May 3, resulting in the defeat of the Federal troops. In the meantime Gen. Sedgwick had crossed the Rappahannock and occupied Fredericksburg. He too was defeated and compelled to retire to the northern bank of the river. Hooker's army reorossed the river on the night of May 5. The loss on each side was about 15,000 killed, wounded, and prisoners. "Stonewall" Jackson mortally wounded.

While the fight was going on near Fredericksburg, Gen. Stoneman, with a large cavalry force, crossed the Rapidan east of Orange Court House, and made a bold and partially successful raid into the enemy's country.

May 8.—Col. Streight's command of 1,700 men captured by Forrest's cavalry, two miles from Cedar Bluff, Ga., after severe fighting. The rebel general Van Dorn killed by Dr. Peters in Manny county, Tenn.

May 9.—Col. Jacobs routed a guerilla force near Horse Shoe Bend on the Cumberland river.

May 10.—The rebel general Stonewall (Thos. J.) Jackson, died at Richmond, Va., of wounds and pneumonia.

May 12.—Gen. McPherson attacked Raymond, Miss., and took the town after a hard fight.

May 13.—Grant defeated Joseph F. Johnston and captured Jackson, Miss., with 7 cannon and large quantities of military stores, besides 400 prisoners. The state capitol was destroyed by fire.

May 15.—Battle of Baker's Creek Miss. The rebel army under Gen. Pem-

ESTABLISHED 1856.

ELEVEN PACKS OF EXTRA WHITE VISITING CARDS, 50 in each pack, eleven names, printed from nickel silver, to agents, $1 00. No order for less than $1 00 taken at this rate. Single order, 65 cards, including 15 high-priced samples, glass, snow-flake, marble, etc., 25c. and 3c. stamp. These last seem to meet with more favor than anything else ever offered to the public.

Though my prices are low, I warrant the cards as good as many that are often sold at retail for four times the price, and if the order is correct and plain, if they do not suit in every particular, I will refund the money when the cards are returned to me, or refill the order. I think my agents have the best chance in the country. Printers in every direction are sending me their orders, and even here in Boston one advertiser recently brought me a large number of orders to print, on which, of course, he was to make his own commission, and I have contracted to do the work for another party in this city in the same way.

I have more than 100 styles of type for this work alone and 150 styles of cards—250 styles in all—the largest assortment in the world, probably; have nearly 60 employees some of the most expert printers in the country, and shall soon have as many more, with facilities for printing six millions of cards per month, if good work, fairness, and prompt ness will furnish me with orders to demand it—and the prospect is good! Many think the cards must be worthless at so low a price, but change their minds when once they see them. I throw away bushels of printed cards which most parties would say are good enough. I could fill volumes with compliments which I have received. "Never was so well suited before," "don't give the agency to any one else," "Cheapest and best we ever saw," and like expressions come with almost every mail. One says, "I know about fifty places to get cards, and like yours the best." One lady said with astonishment, "Why, these are NICE cards, I never thought of patronizing Mr. Cannon's cheap concern.

I do not wish to build up my business by false representations, and only ask my patrons to compare my work with others, and so if what I say is not so.

I would rather receive 200 orders and make $1 00 on them, giving employment to 100 printers, doing all my work by hand, than get 100 orders and make $1 00 on them, getting the benefit of my low prices, than get 100 orders, doing the same time, with steam-power and help, charging agents more, keeping but four or five hands at work, necessarily causing long delays in filling orders.

Remember, the cards will be sent by return mail, and the money refunded if the cards do not suit, if the order is plain. Circulars, price lists, etc., sent for agents. Send no pennies nor 3-cent packages. W. C. CANNON, 46 Rutland St., 712 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

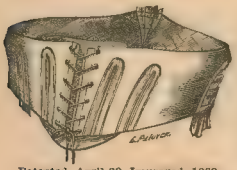
THE LARGEST TOY BAZAAR IN THIS COUNTRY.

The attention of PHYSICIANS is respectfully called to

MRS. CYRENE SMITH'S

ABDOMINAL SUPPORTER.



This Supporter is especially adapted to the treatment of the various Displacements of the Uterus, and a Relapsed state of the Abdominal Parts.

The most simple and practical of any ever invented. It supports the abdomen, and causes the womb and other organs to assume their natural positions. They are easily adjusted, and so comfortable to the wearer, that patients say they feel better upon having a supporter applied. Very fleshy persons have found this supporter to be just what they need. It has been very successfully used in cases of rupture, by both males and females.

Patented, April 29, Improved, 1869. Ladies will find great comfort in wearing them

BEFORE AND AFTER CONFINEMENT,

And will be able to take long walks and not be fatigued, as they would be without it. ☞ In case of soreness, the pad may be left off a few days. In case of Pregnancy, or very large Abdomen, order No. 2

THE HOME OF WASHINGTON'S ANCESTORS.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1880, by Frederick Hale, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the U. S. for the Southern District of New York.

THE MANOR HOUSE, SULGRAVE, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, which was held of the Priory of St. Andrew, was surrendered to the Crown upon the dissolution of the Monasteries, and in the 30th of Henry VIII. (1539), it was granted to Lawrence Washington, gent. of Northampton. Robert Washington, his son and heir, conjointly with his eldest son Lawrence, sold the manor in 1610 to Lawrence Makepeace, gent. of the Inner Temple, London. Lawrence Washington, the second son, (Lawrence, retired to Brington, where he died, and his second son, John Washington, emigrated to America about the mid-Dle of the 17th century, and was grandfather of the great American patriot and father of his country, George Washington.

Piano Fortes,

These matchless instruments have been before the public for the last thirty years, and the manufacturers respectfully refer to any or all who have one in possession for a guarantee of their goodness.

With no parade, with but a simple desire and determination to make an honest Piano, they have successfully vanquished every acoustic and mechanical difficulty as it has presented itself.

Their reputation for GOOD WORK remains unchanged, and their PIANOS are a fitting monument of the years of toilsome thought that have been spent on them.

They stand to day the OLDEST MANUFACTURERS of the PIANO FORTE in business experience, in this country.

WASHINGTON WHEN HE TOOK COMMAND OF THE ARMY.

A GREAT CONVENIENCE!

It is a very common thing for a lady to say, when she has been well fitted to a pair of Boots or Shoes,

"I WISH YOU WOULD KEEP MY SIZE."

That request could be very easily complied with if the manufacturer's name was stamped upon the goods not only by the salesman but by the customer herself. Every dealer in Boots and Shoes of the FIRST CLASS GOODS should be willing to let his customers know how they may be fitted the next time with exactly the same size that fits the foot at first.

NO TWO MANUFACTURER'S BOOTS OR SHOES ARE ALIKE,

if the marks for the size be the same; every manufacturer has his own whims about his lasts. It has been the intention of the subscriber to conform to the of Boots and Shoes, from his first start in business, and the goods have always commanded a higher price than any other Boots or Shoes in the market.

The great thing about a Boot or Shoe is to have it fit well and feel like an old Boot or Shoe. Goods of this kind will not stretch out of shape; the difference in the price is not to be thought of when the comfort and durability are taken into account.

A GREAT IMPROVEMENT

has been made in the goods the last six months.

There are many retail dealers who, in consequence of the representations of certain manufacturers, tell their customers,

"WE DO NOT KEEP THE KIMBALL BOOT, BUT WE HAVE SOME THAT ARE MADE ON THE KIMBALL LAST."

In answer to this, I hereby inform the consumers, as well as the dealer, that the

with its various improvements, as used in my factory ONLY, and not elsewhere in the United States.

33 S. EUTAW STREET, BALTIMORE.

Brattle Square Church, Boston Was first built in 1699, was taken down in 1772, and the building just demolished, erected on the same spot, was dedicated on the 25th of July, 1773. During the Revolution the pastor, who was a patriot, was obliged to leave Boston, services were suspended and the British soldiers used the building as a barrack. A cannon-ball from a battery in Cambridge, or from a ship of war in Charles river, struck the church, and this memmento of the glorious contest was afterwards built into the external wall of the church, above the the porch. The old church was sold in 1871, and the last services was held in it July 30th of that year. The ancint pulpit, the old bell, the organ, the historic cannon-ball, and some other mementos, were reserved at the sale. A large business block now occupies the site of the church.

Perry's Flag Ship "Lawrence."—Our illustration is from a Photograph by Viers & Dunlap, Erie, Pa., and shows the condition in which she appeared, when raised in Misery Bay, Erie Harbor, after laying at the bottom of Lake Erie for 63 years. She was raised September 17, 1875, and was on exhibition in Philadelphia, during the Centennial year, 1876.

City Hall, Boston.—The corner-stone was laid on the 22d of December, 1862—the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. The amount first appropriated was $160,000, but before the building was occupied the actual cost was more than half a million dollars. The building was completed and dedicated on the 18th of September, 1865. The tablet in the wall, back of the first landing, perpetuates in beautifully worked marble, the statement that the dedication took place on the 17th of September. This day would have been highly appropriate for the ceremony, being the two hundredth and thirty fifth anniversary of the settlement of Boston, had it not fallen on Sunday. The ceremony was accordingly postponed until the following day.

Faneuil Hall, the "Cradle of Liberty". This building was presented to Boston by Peter Faneuil. It was erected in 1742, destroyed by fire in 1761, and immediately thereafter was rebuilt by the vote of the town. In 1805 it was enlarged to its present size, and until 1822 all town meetings of Boston were held within its walls. The hall is 76 feet square and 28 feet high. It is never let for money, but is at the disposal of the people, whenever a sufficient number of persons, complying with certain regulations, ask to have it opened. By a provision in the charter of Boston, it is forbidden the sale or lease of the hall.

MANUFACTURERS OF

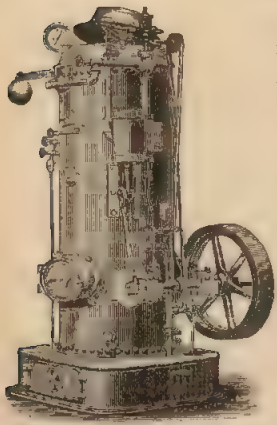
THE TRADE ENGINE,

MILL GEARING PULLEYS & SHAFTING.

DAYTON, OHIO.



In offering the "Trade Engine" to the public, the manufacturers do so fully convinced that from actual test of the machine, that they can honestly recommend it as all they represent it, viz: a FIRST CLASS MOTOR. The care observed in its manufacture, to use the best material, the best of skilled workmen, and to correctly proportion the machine to the work, in its details, leave no doubt of its utility.

While running one of our engines for months as our motor, and thoroughly observing the points needing correction and improvement, and taking advantage of the opportunity, we have, during the past year, from time to time, added to this point in the details and removed or improved that defect until the "Trade Engine" has no superior in sterling utility. The boilers are of the best Charcoal Hammered Iron, the flues the best lap welded to be had, and not a scrap of casting in the boiler, and as a steam generator not surpassed. The first accident to one of our boilers has yet to be reported. The engine is also constructed of the best material. Steel is used where it can be prudently. Brass is used for pads and bearings for the shafts, and glands for stuffing boxes. A piston is used that is so simple it is almost impossible to damage it, and on this account singularly adapted to the use of engines sold to purchasers not versed in engine matters, and the whole machine designed and arranged as regards steam passages, ports, &c., in the most approved locomotive style and practice. Taking into consideration the hitherto high reputation of the Trade Engine, the efforts made to yet add to its value, and the actual tests made by using it as a motor for our own use, we can, with truth say that we offer to the public the best engine in the market for the price. There is in fact, no first class machine sold that is not from 20 to 40 per cent. higher in price, and none its superior in utility; hence the inducement to purchasers is a fair one. All sizes of our engine have been carefully subjected to Indicator tests before being considered honestly marketable, hence we know what we offer, and can guarantee the purchaser that he gets what he buys. We warrant all our engines to give the rated power at 50 pounds mean or piston pressure, and the steam passages are so short from boiler to engine, that little difference can be observed between boiler and piston pressure, hence with the large piston surface in our engines to the horse power, the effect can be realized at comparatively low steam. For instance, a 2 H. P. engine is by some of the best manufacturers made with a 3 inch cylinder (7 square inches). The 2 H. P. Trade Engine is a 4 inch cylinder (12 square inches). The difference in the engines with the same head of steam must be evident. Power in a steam engine is, square inches in piston, steam pressure, and feet travelled. The same number of feet travelled per minute, with the same pressure, but nearly double the square inches in piston, must result in nearly double the power realized. It is an easy matter to name an engine 2, 4, or 6 horse power, but the facts must be elicited on actual test, when put to the work.

We have stated the above points merely to show that the "Trade Engine" is much more powerful than many of its competitors which are rated higher, and consequently the purchaser gets much more for his money, and that it has an additional claim to merit on that account.

The Manufacturers build from ½ Horse up, viz: 1 Horse, 2—4—6—8 and 10 Horse, and respectfully solicit public patronage. Inquiries promptly responded to.

May 31. Confederate Gen. Hood and staff surrendered.

COST OF THE WAR.—In the Union armies probably 300,000 men were killed in battle, or died of wounds and disease, while doubtless two hundred thousand more were crippled for life. If the Confederate armies suffered as heavily, the country thus lost one million able-bodied men. The Union debt, Jan. 1, 1866, was nearly $2,750,000,000. At one time, the daily expenses reached the sum of $3,500,000. During the last year of the war, the expenses were greater than the entire expenditures of the Government from Washington to Buchanan. The Confederate war debt was never paid, as that Government was overthrown.

Johnston Building, Cincinnati, O.—The building has a frontage of 190 feet on Fifth street, 54 feet on Walnut street and 79 feet on the alley which runs through from Fifth street to Fourth street. It is six stories in height and has ten elegant stores on the ground floor, of varying width, and ninety rooms on the five floors above. The style of architecture is known as the modern French Renaissance, the front being of Buena Vista stone and iron, and it presents to the view an appearance that attracts and charms every beholder. It is as nearly a fire-proof building as one can be made, is arranged to be heated by steam, and has both a passenger and a freight safety elevator, operated by steam. Three staircases afford approach to the several stories, each stairway having stone treads and iron railings. Each floor has a wide, handsome corridor.

A wise man, seeing the necessity of insurance, will be careful to select a company that is old and strong, that has been thoroughly tested in every way, and concerning which there can be no possibility of mistake. None but the very best will satisfy him. He cannot afford to try experiments with the risk of losing both his insurance and his money in weak and doubtful companies, but will seek to place his insurance in a company where the security furnished is absolute. There are such companies. And among the very best, and, as those best acquainted with its affairs fully believe, standing foremost, is the CONNECTICUT MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, of Hartford, Conn.

New Government Building, Covington, Ky.—The new Government building, on Scott street, between Third and Lower Market, are to be used as a United States Post office and Court rooms. The site purchased for this building is a beautiful one, conveniently located and admirably adapted to the uses for which it is designed. The price paid for the ground was in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars, thirty thousand of which was appropriated by Congress, and the balance raised by contribution from the property holders in the vicinity. The appropriation for the building is $250,000. The lot is one hundred and sixty-seven by one hundred and fifty feet in extent. The work of excavation was commenced August 16th, 1875. The foundation is one hundred and forty feet in length and seventy nine feet in width.

Grand Opera House, Reading, Pa.—The building itself is 60 by 120 feet is four stories in height, and makes the most imposing appearance of any building on Penn street. It is surmounted by the figure of a lyre. The front is of pressed brick painted a neutral color. There are two main entrances, each 7 by 5 inches in width, leading to a platform 27 feet in length by 8 feet in depth. In the center of the platform is the box office, which is neatly fitted up. From this platform a flight of steps, 9½ feet in width, leads to stairways, diverging to the right and left, 6½ feet in width. Four lamps of ground glass, with the name of "Grand Opera House" on each, are used for lighting up the entrance. A feature of the building, and a commendable one it is, is that all the doors open outwardly. Its seating capacity is 1200.

State Capitol, Harrisburg, Pa.—On the 31st of May, 1819, the corner stone of the Capitol was laid by Governor Findlay. The building was completed in 1821, and first occupied by the General Assembly on the 3d of January, 1822.

State Capitol, Lansing, Mich.—Cost of Building $1,350,000. Complete building entirely fire proof; exterior, cut stone; height of dome 269 feet; length of building 420 feet; centre building 212 feet deep; height of building in centre, to top of pediment, 112 feet; height of cornice from ground on wings, 82 feet, 7 inches.

The building is entirely heated with steam and requires 33 miles of steam pipe, and 13,000 feet of gas pipe for the lighting of the building. The Chandeliers will all be lighted by the aid of electricity. The ceilings of House of Representatives and Senate Chamber are illuminated with plate glass, cut and colored in elaborate pattern. The building requires four steam boilers, five feet in diameter and 16 feet long, to furnish steam for the heating and ventilating apparatus. All the offices have their private water closets and wash basins, and accommodations of this kind are furnished in the basement, for the public. The dome foundation is fifteen feet thick: foundation of outer walls, six feet thick. No wood is used in the construction, except for the doors and window frames. The glass to all the windows is English polished plate, each plate to the windows five feet six inches high, and three feet six inches wide, and weigh four and a half pounds to the square foot. This building required seventeen millions of brick, kiln count, for the walls. The brick are all laid in hydraulic cement. The exterior stone work is the best quality Amherst, Ohio, sand stone, and required about seven hundred thousand cubic feet of stone for the structure; excavation for the foundation 17,000 cubic yards; 220,000 yards of plastering; 27,000 square feet of marble tile for the corridors; 17,300 lineal feet of wainscoting; 1,440,700 lbs of iron floor beams; 230,000 lbs. of iron in the roof trusses. Weight of dome trusses 170 tons. 19,717 lbs. of iron tie-rods and anchorage to beams and walls. Weight of iron to the stairs, 400,000 lbs.; weight of the iron columns on inside of building 274,464 lbs. The iron smoke stack leading from the boilers, weight 61,050 lbs. The roof surface requires 467,780 feet of surface of metal to cover the roof. There are 428 windows to the building and 348 doors. The cost of plate glass to the building $42,500. The building will require for the entire completion five years and three months, as per contract, and will be finished by the first day of January, A. D. 1878. The Architect of the building, E. E. Myers, Detroit, Mich. This State Capitol will be entirely finished within the original sum appropriated by the Legislature, and so far there is scarcely any builder's extras. Commissioners are appointed by Gov. Baldwin for this building. He attached great importance to having good practical, experienced builders as the Commissioners, and this building is now erected under the most skillful builders, and the State can only appreciate such men, in whom they have placed this important trust. This building, when complete, will be one of the finest State Capitols in this country, and erected at one third the cost of any building of this kind now being erected.

Suspension Bridge between Cincinnati & Covington. The bridge connecting Cincinnati and Covington, was constructed by John A. Roebling, at a cost of $1,800,000. The distance between the towers is 1,057 feet, and including approaches, it is 2,252 feet in length and 36 feet in width. The towers are 260 feet in height with the turrets 230. The main cables are a foot in diameter and contain 10,360 wires, weighing 16,300 pounds. The bridge is 103 feet above low water mark. It was opened to the cublic on the 1st of January, 1867.

Fort Industry Block, Toledo, O.—Stands at the S. E. cor. Summit and Monroe streets, fronting 80 feet on the former and extending at a like width to Water street. It was built in 1843 by Richard Mott, who now owns it, at a cost of some $14,000, and divided into four stores. In 1874 it was raised by being screwed up, making four roomy offices in the basement. the entire building being thoroughly overhauled and almost rebuilt at an expense of about $20,000, The first story is fitted for Bank and Insurance rooms, in one of which is the TOLEDO SAVINGS BANK AND TRUST CO. The two stories above are used for offices. It is the oldest substantial structure in Toledo. On its location was originally a steep bluff upwards of 30 feet above the Maumee river, which had to be graded to the established level of the street on which it fronts, and where formerly stood Fort Industry, whence the name of the Block. This fort was one of the early (then frontier) posts where for years a small garrison was stationed. The post was abandoned at or before the war of 1812, hardly any indication of its existence remaining for years before the Block was put up.

U. S. Government Building, Cincinnati, O.—The New Custom House, Post Office and Court House, now being erected, occupies one half of the square bounded by Fifth, Sixth, Main and Walnut streets. The exterior walls are to be of Granite, the basement and stylobate from the Red Granite quarries of Middlebrook, Mo. The building will be 354 by 104 feet, four stories in height above ground, exclusive of the attics and roof stories. To complete this building will cost, exclusive of the site nearly $3,000,000. The expectation is that it will prove equal to the growth of Cincinnati for many years to come. It is so planned, however, that additions may be made in harmony with the design.

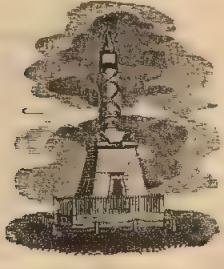
Washington Monument, Baltimore, Md. The corner stone was laid on the 4th of July, 1815, and the Statue, representing Washington resigning his commission, was placed in position October 19, 1829. The Monument is a graceful Doric Column, built of white marble. The base is 50 feet square and 24 feet high, and the column is 164 feet in height. The whole structure rises to an elevation of over 260 feet above tide-water.



Battle Monument, Baltimore, Md.—This Monument stands on Calvert street, between Fayette and Lexington streets. It was erected in honor of the memories of the heroes who fell at the Battle of North Point, September 12, 1814. The corner stone was laid in 1815, and the expenses were defrayed by individual subscription.

Old Court House, York, Pa. It was in this old building that the Continental Congress met in the years 1776-77, after being driven from Philadelphia to Lancaster, Pa., chance to York. It was erected in 1756, in the public square, in what was then known as Yorktown. It was a two-story brick building, with four gables, surmounted by a steeple. On the site where it once stood is now a handsome new Court House.

James Buchanan

(FIFTEENTH PRESIDENT.)

James Buchanan was born in Franklin county, Pennsylvania, April 13, 1791, and died at Wheatland, June 1, 1868. He was a graduate of Dickinson College and was admitted to the bar in 1812. He was President from 1857 to 1861, and was so constantly in office from 1820 up to that time that he was known by the sobriquet of "Public Functionary."

The "bachelor-President," as Mr. Buchanan was sometimes called, was sixty-six years old when he was called to the executive chair. He had just returned to his native country, after an absence of four years as Minister to England, previously to that he had been well known in public life as Congressman, Senator, and as Secretary of State under President Polk. As Senator in Jackson's time, he heartily supported his administration. With Van Buren, he warmly advocated the idea of an independent treasury against the opposition of Clay, Webster, and others. Under Tyler, he was urgently in favor of the annexation of Texas, thus again coming in conflict with Clay and Webster. However, he cordially agreed with them in the compromise of 1850, and urged its favor upon the people. Much was hoped from his election, as he avowed the object of his administration to be "to destroy any sectional party, whether North or South, and to restore, if possible, that national fraternal feeling between the different States that had existed during the early days of the Republic." But popular passion and sectional jealousy were too strong to yield to pleasant persuasion. When Mr. Buchanan's administration closed, the fearful conflict was close at hand. He retired to his estate in Pennsylvania, where he died.

Indiana State Building, Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia.—This building is constructed of a combination of wood and other building materials, a frame of wood being the support of the building and roof, to which an outer wall of brick, stone, terra cotta, iron, and coal can be attached. There are three entrances by four broad steps to the front and side porches, and an open-roofed balcony is extended from each side entrance to the front entrance. The assembly hall is a grand auditorium for miscellaneous gatherings. It is in the form of an irregular cross, 55 feet at its longest angle, and has about 1,400 feet of floor. From the level of the ceilings of the side rooms it is spanned by a truss-arched roof at a height of 24 feet above the center of the hall. It is lighted by the rotunda above, and an ornamental fountain plays in the center below. On the walls are 200 tablets, of which number, 92 are used by the counties of the State for the general statistics of each county, and the remainder are given to individuals or firms. There are also committee rooms, a ladies' parlor, invalids' room, post office, telegraph office, baggage room, gentlemen's parlor, and the building is a place where any citizen of the State can be at home, to entertain friends and dispatch business. The whole is surmounted by a handsome truss roof, from the top of whose arches a lighted open rotunda of glass and wood rise, created with metallic ornaments and statues. The entire cost of the building was $10.000.

(EIGHTEENTH PRESIDENT, TWO TERMS.)

Ulysses S. Grant was born at Point Pleasant, Clermont county, Ohio, April 27, 1822. He was very unwilling to follow his father's trade, which was that of a tanner, and, at seventeen, an appointment was secured for him at West Point. His name having been wrongly registered, Grant vainly attempted to set the matter right, but finally accepted his "manifest destiny," assumed the change thus forced upon him, and thenceforth signed himself "Ulysses Simpson," the latter being his mother's family name. Two years after completing his four years' course as cadet, the Mexican war broke out, in which Grant conducted himself with great gallantry, receiving especial mention and promotion. In 1847 he was made first-lieutenant, captain in 1853, and in 1854 he resigned his commission, and entered the leather and saddlery business at Galena, Illinois, in 1859, where he remained until the opening of the war in 1861, when he immediately offered his services in behalf of the Union. His modesty and diffidence delayed their acceptance, and Governor Yates, of Illinois, was the first to avail himself of them. Grant finally took the field as Colonel of the Twenty-first Regiment Illinois Volunteers. In February, 1862, he was made a major-general, and commanded the armies of the South-west. On the 12th of March, 1864, he was made lieutenant-general and put in command of all the armies, and took personal direction of the military operations in Virginia, and, on the 9th of April, 1865, General Lee surrendered the Confederate armies to him, at Appomattox Court House, and hostilities were ended.

He was nominated and elected by the Republicans President of the United States in 1868, and re-elected by the same party in 1872, and is now the present incumbent. His term expires in 1877.

Japanese Commissioners' Building, Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia. This building is regarded as the finest piece of carpenter-work ever seen in this country. The wood of which it is built is most beautifully grained and as smooth as satin. Every portion of the building is most carefully fitted together, and the carving is truly wonderful. Some of our more progressive mechanics were inclined to ridicule the leisurely manner in which the Japanese workmen labored, but they find that if the work was done slowly, it was done remarkably well.

New Hampshire State Building, Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia. Like the other state buildings, it is constructed of wood, two stories high with an attic. The first floor is surrounded with a portico. It is a roomy building, handsomely finished inside and outside. It contains all the conveniences necessary to make the Centennial visitors comfortable.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It must be a self-evident fact to all owners of Horses, that improvement is greatly needed in shoeing them, and that those who study this science and practice it, need a more than superficial knowledge of the Anatomy and Physiology of the foot, and of the laws that govern mechanics, to guide them in making and placing the shoes, so that they shall in no way interfere with the functions of the organs composing the leg and foot. To this object I have devoted the whole attention and study of a lifetime. I therefore beg to call the attention of the public to my "PATENT HORSE SHOE," which is constructed on scientific principles, and is considered by all critics the most perfect yet invented.

All LAMENESS in the feet, such as CORNS, QUARTER CRACKS, CENTRE CRACKS, NAILS IN THE FOOT, CREASE in the HEELS, QUITTORS, ETC., ETC., will be treated carefully and properly.

New Jersey State Building, Centennial Exposition, Phila.—This building is a frame structure, with tile roofing. Its dimentions are 32 feet in length by 42 in width, and two stories in height, with attic and observatory. On one side there is a large chimney, costing $800, containing specimens of all the fancy brick manufactured in New Jersey. The entire cost of the building was $8,000.

New York State Building, Centennial Exposition, Phila.—Is 30x60 feet, with spacious square bays in each end, which extend to roof, while a portico 13.6 wide extends across street front. The first floor contains two rooms, one for ladies and one for gentlemen, with retiring and private consultation rooms, etc. In the hall a winding stair case ascends to second floor, which contains two parlors and several private apartments. From this floor the staircase continues to attic floor, thence to the cupola. The interior is decorated in soft gay colors, and with its many irregular features, ranks among the handsomest structures of its size on the ground. Messrs. Croff & Camp, of Saratoga, N. Y., were the architects.

Ohio State Building, Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia.—It is the most substantial of the State buildings. It is built of Sandstone, furnished by the proprietors of the various quarries in Ohio. Some of the stones are very beautiful, and the colors are tastefully blended together. Each course of stone is from a different quarry, and twenty one quarries are represented in the like number of layers from the ground to the eaves. The building is two stories, with high roof. It is 80 feet wide and 58 feet deep, including the front porch. A verandah 12 feet wide runs on each side and in rear of the building, that on the east being covered with a porch without columns—the other porches having supporting columns. A hallway 9 feet wide and 46 feet long runs through the center of the building, on each floor, on each side of which are committee, reception, retiring and other suitable rooms. At a meeting of the Ohio State Board, a resolution was adopted donating their State building to the Philadelphia park commissioners.

Art Exhibition Hall, Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia. The building is of the modern Iron. The exterior walls are granite, glass, and iron. No wood is used in the construction. The building is 365 feet in length, 210 feet in width and 59 feet in height. The dome is 150 feet from the ground. It is of glass and iron, and of a unique design. It terminates in a colossal bell, from which the figure of Columbia rises with protecting hands. A figure of colossal size stands at each corner of the base of the dome. These figures typify the four quarters of the globe. The building will remain as a permanent exhibition hall on the grounds. The cost of the building was $1,500,000.

English Commissioners' Building, Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia. The building is 93 feet by 68 feet, the structure is intended to convey some idea of English architecture in former days. The walls are of half-timber work with lath and rough cast plaster between, the base being a plinth of red brick coped with stone. The roof is covered with plain red tiles, with tile ridging hips and finials. The body of the building seems to be entirely windows; the casements of the rooms and of the corridors in the two stories of the structure are connected and form an uninterrupted line of windows. The panes are four inches square, set in lead frames. A large reception room that is used by the officers of the British commission, and the commissions from Canada and the many British colonies throughout the world. The upper story is devoted to parlor, bed rooms, dining room and kitchen. The wash rooms are provided with basins of a peculiar make, which were imported from England. The building was denoted to Philadelphia.

(NINTH PRESIDENT.)

William Henry Harrison was born in Charles City county, Virginia, February 9, 1773. He entered the army in 1791, after graduating from Hampden-Sydney College. After reaching the grade of Captain he resigned in 1797; was chosen delegate to Congress from the North-western Territory in 1797; appointed governor of Indiana in 1801, and continued to 1813. He was elected President of the United States in 1840, and had scarcely entered upon the duties of his office when he died at Washington, April 4, 1841. In 1812 he distinguished himself during the war, especially in the battle of the Thames. His military reputation made him available as a Presidential candidate. His character was unimpeachable, and the chief slur cast upon him by his opponents was that he had lived in a "log cabin" with nothing to drink but "hard cider." His friends turned this to good account. The campaign was noted for immense mass-meetings, long processions, song-singing and general enthusiasm. "Hard cider" became a party watch-word, and "log cabins" a regular feature in the popular parades. He was elected by a very large majority, and great hopes were entertained of his administration. Though advanced in years, he gave promise of endurance. But "he was beset by office-seekers; he was anxious to gratify the numerous friends and supporters who flocked about him, he gave himself incessantly to public business; and at the close of the month he was on a sick bed." His illness was of eight days' duration. His last words were, "The principles of the government, I wish them carried out. I ask nothing more."

sent to France in 1803, when he secured the purchase of Louisiana. He is said to have always taken particular pride in this transaction, regarding his part in it as among the most important of his public services. Soon after his inauguration as President, he visited the military posts in the north and east, with a view to thorough acquaintance with the capabilities of the country in the event of future hostilities. This tour was a great success. He wore a blue military coat of home-spun, light-colored breeches, and a cocked hat, being the undress uniform of a Revolutionary officer. Thus was the nation reminded of his former military services. This, with his plain, unassuming manners, completely won the hearts of the people, and brought an overwhelming majority to the support of the administration. Monroe was a man more prudent than brilliant, who acted with a single eye to the welfare of the country. Jefferson said of him: "If his soul were turned inside out, not a spot could be found on it." Like that beloved friend, he died "poor in money, but rich in honor," and like him also, he passed away on the anniversary of the independence of the country he served so faithfully.

J. Q. Adams

(SIXTH PRESIDENT.)

John Quincy Adams was born at Braintree, Mass., July 11, 1767, and died at Washington, February 23, 1848. He was President from 1825 to 1829.

John Q. Adams was a man of learning, of blameless reputation and unquestioned patriotism. As President he was hardly more successful than his father. This was, doubtless, owing greatly to the fierce opposition which assailed him from the friends of disappointed candidates, who at once combined to weaken his measures and prevent his re-election. Their candidate was Andrew Jackson, a

John Adams

(SECOND PRESIDENT.)

John Adams was born in Braintree, Mass., October 1735, and died 1826. He graduated at Harvard College in 1755, and, abandoning the idea of becoming a minister of the gospel, was admitted to the bar in 1758. He was one of the delegates first sent to the Continental Congress from Massachusetts. In 1776 he was made President of the Board of War, and went to France as a Commissioner in 1777. He served as President of the United States from 1797 to 1801. He was a member of the first and second Congresses, and nominated Washington as commander-in-chief. Jefferson wrote the Declaraton of Independence, but Adams secured its adoption in a three-days' debate. He was a tireless worker, and had the reputation of having the clearest head and firmest heart of any man in Congress. In his position as President he lost the reputation he had gained as Congressman. His enemies accused him of being a bad judge of men: of clinging to old unpopular notions, and of having little control over his temper. They also ridiculed his egotism, which they declared to be inordinate. He lived, however, to see the prejudice against his administration give place to a more just estimate of his great worth and exalted integrity. As a Delegate to the Constitutional Convention, he was honored as one of the fathers of the republic. Adams and Jefferson were firm friends during the Revolution, but political strife alienated them. On their return to private life they became reconciled. They died on the same day—the fiftieth anniversary of American independence. Adams' last words were, "Thomas Jefferson still survives." Jefferson was, however, already lying dead in his Virginia home. Thus, by the passing away of these two remarkable men, was made memorable the 4th of July, 1826.

SKETCHES

PRESIDENTS.

(FIRST PRESIDENT.—TWO TERMS.)

George Washington was born on the Potomac river, in Westmoreland county, Virginia, February 22d, 1732, and died December 14, 1799. In 1754 he was made Lieutenant Colonel of the militia, and accompanied Braddock in his expedition against Fort Duquesne in 1755. In the same year he was made Commander-in Chief of the military forces of the Colony of Va., and in 1787 he was unanimously chosen President of the Convention that met to frame a Constitution. He was inaugurated first President of the United States, April 30, 1789: and, being re-elected, he held the office until 1797. In 1788 and in 1792 he was again chosen President of the United States, but, conceiving it to be a dangerous precedent to serve more than two terms, he patriotically declined a third election. In early life he followed the occupation of an engineer. He was married to Miss Martha Custis, in January, 1759. Congress unanimously elected him commander of the revolutionary forces, and he took active command July 2, 1775, and held supreme military control throughout the strugman whose dashing boldness, energy and decision attracted the popular masses, and hid the more quiet virtues of Adams. To add to his perplexities, a majority of the House, and nearly one-half of the Senate, favored the new party, and his own Vice-President, John C. Calhoun, was also the candidate of the opposition, and of course committed to it. To stem such a tide was a hopeless effort. In two years Adams was returned to Congress, where he remained until his death, over sixteen years afterward. Ten years of public service were thus rendered after he had passed his "three-score years and ten," and so great was his ability in debate at this extreme age, that he was called "the old man eloquent." Like his father, he was a wonderful worker, and his mind was a complete store-house of facts. He lived economically, and left a large estate. He was the congressional advocate of anti-slavery, and a bitter opponent of secret societies. His fame increased with his age, and he died a trusted and revered champion of popular rights. He was siezed with paralysis while occupying his seat in Congress, after which he lingered two days in partial unconsciousness. His last words were, "This is the last of earth; I am content."

Machinery Hall, Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia. [illegible] was erected by the citizens of Philadelphia, as a testimonial of the progress of American mechanics. It was commenced April 19th, 1875, and, on the 4th day of July following, was so far completed as to enable an immense gathering of the people to assemble beneath its roof, to celebrate, in appropriate manner, the natal day of our independence. The building is 360 feet wide by 1,402 feet long, with an annex on the south side of 208 by 210 feet. The entire area covered is 568,440 square feet, or 13 acres, exclusive of the upper floors. Sixteen lines of shafting, running almost the entire length of the building, and counter shafts introduced into the aisles, at almost every point, are placed in position. Twelve lengths of the shafting is run at a speed of 120 revolutions, and four lengths at a speed of 240 revolutions per minute. Cost of structure, $722,000.

gress unattended, and, leaping from his horse, hitched it, and went into the chamber dressed in plain clothes, to read his fifteen-minutes' inaugural. Some of the sentences of that short but memorable address have passed into proverbs. The unostentatious example thus set by the nation's President was wise in its effects. Soon the public debt was diminished, the army and navy reduced, and the Treasury replenished. A man of such marked character necessarily made bitter enemies, but Jefferson commanded the respect of even his opponents, while the admiration of his friends was unbounded. The last seventeen years of his life were spent at Monticello, near the place of his birth. By his profuse hospitality, he had, before his death, spent his vast estates. He died poor in money, but rich in honor. His last words were, "This is the fourth day of July."

(FOURTH PRESIDENT.—TWO TERMS.)

James Madison was born in King George county, Virginia, March 16, 1751, and died in 1836. He graduated at Princeton College in 1778, after which he studied law; and from 1809 to 1817 he was President of the United States. In Congress in 1789 he became one of the strongest advocates of the Constitution and did much to secure its adoption. From his political principles he was obliged, though reluctantly, to oppose Washington's administration, which he did in a courteous and temperate manner. He led his party in Congress, where he remained till 1797. The next year he drafted the famous "1798-99 Resolutions," enunciating the doctrines of State rights, which, with the accompanying "Report" in their defense, have been the great text-book of the Democratic party. In the absence of any appropriation from the State, this building was erected mainly through the exertions of the Michigan State Centennial Board and Julius Hess, the architect, at a cost of about $15,000. It is constructed entirely of Michigan lumber, above the foundation. The inside as well as the outside of the building is highly decorative. The walls and ceilings inside the building are panneled, no plastering being used, and the floors of several rooms are inlaid to neat patterns.

M. Van Buren.

(EIGHTH PRESIDENT.)

Martin Van Buren was born at Kinderhook, New York, December 5, 1782, and and died, at the same place, July 24, 1862. He studied law and was admitted to practice in 1803; was elected President of the United States, and served four years, from 1837 to 1841. He early took an interest in politics, and in 1818 started a new organization of the Democratic party in New York, his native State, which had the power for over twenty years. In 1831 he was appointed Minister to England, whither he went in September, but when the nomination came before the Senate in December it was rejected, on the ground that he had sided with England against the United States, on certain matters, and had carried party contests and their results into foreign negotiations. His party regarded this as an extreme political persecution, and the next year elected him to the Vice-Presidency. He thus became head of the Senate which a few months before had condemned him, and where he now performed his duties with "dignity, courtesy and impartiality."

As a President, Van Buren was the subject of much partisan censure. The country was passing through a peculiar crisis, and his was a difficult position to fill with satisfaction to all. That he pleased his own party is proved from the fact of his re-nomination in 1840 against Harrison. In 1844 he was once more urged by his friends, but failed to get a two-thirds vote in the convention on account of his opposition to the annexation of Texas. In 1848 he became a candidate of the "Free Democracy," a new party advocating anti-slavery principles. After this he retired to his estate in Kinderhook, N. Y., where he died.

(TWELFTH PRESIDENT.)

Zachary Taylor was born in Orange county, Virginia, November 24, 1784. He entered upon the duties of President in 1849, and died at the Presidential Mansion July 9, 1850, after an illness of five days. Soon after his birth his parents removed to Kentucky. His means of education were of the scantiest kind, and until he was twenty-four years of age he worked on his father's plantation. Madison, who was a relative, and at that time Secretary of State, then secured for him an appointment in the army as lieutenant. From this he rose by regular and rapid degrees to a major generalship. His triumphant battles at Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey, and Buena Vista, won him great applause. He was the popular hero of a successful war. The soldiers admiringly called him "Old Rough and Ready." Having been offered the nomination for President, he published several letters defining his position as "a whig, but not an ultra-whig," and declaring that he would not be a party candidate or the exponent of party doctrines. Many of the whig leaders violently opposed his nomination. Daniel Webster called him "an ignorant frontier colonel." The fact that he was a slaveholder was warmly urged against him. He knew nothing of civil affairs, and had taken so little interest in politics that he had not voted in forty years. But he was nominated and elected. His nomination caused a secession from the whigs, resulting in the formation of the free-soil party. He felt his want of qualifications for the position, and sometimes expressed his regret that he had accepted it; yet he maintained as President the popularity which had led to his election, and was personally one of the most esteemed who have filled that office.

(SIXTEENTH PRESIDENT.)

Abraham Lincoln was born in Hardin county, Kentucky, on the 12th of February, 1809. He was elected President in 1860, and was re-elected in 1864, and had entered upon the duties of his office for the second time, when he was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth, April 14th, 1865, and died the following day.

His father was unable to read or write. Abraham's education consisted of one year's schooling. When he was eight years old, his father moved to Indiana, the family floating down the Ohio on a raft. When nineteen years of age, the future President hired out as a hand on a flat-boat at $10 a month, and made a trip to New Orleans. On his return he accompanied the family to Illinois, driving the cattle on the journey, and on reaching their destination helped them to build a cabin and split rails to enclose the farm. He was now in succession a flat-boat hand, clerk, captain of a company of volunteers in the Black Hawk War, country store-keeper, postmaster, and surveyor, yet he managed to get a knowledge of law by borrowing books at an office, before it closed at night, and returning them at its opening in the morning. On being admitted to the bar, he rapidly rose to distinction. At twenty-five he was sent to the Legislature, and was thrice re-elected. Turning his attention to politics, he soon became a leader. He was sent to Congress; he canvassed the State, harangning the people daily on great national questions; and, in 1858, he was a candidate for Senator, a second time, against Stephen A. Douglass. The two rivals stumped the State together. The debate, unrivalled for its statesmanship, logic and wit, won for Lincoln a national reputation. He lost the election in the Legislature, as his party was in the minority. After his accession to the Presidency, his history, like Washington's, is identified with that of his country. He was a tall, ungainly man, little versed in the refinements of society, but gifted by nature with great common

SAMEUL J. TILDEN.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES.

The above are illustrations of the two contestants for President of the United States, in the year 1876. Samuel J. Tilden, of New York, represents the Democratic party, and Rutherford B. Hayes, of Ohio, represents the Republican party. Both parties claim that their candidate was elected, and so strong are they in their belief, that it is almost impossible to tell how the matter will terminate. Owing to this uncertainty we forego giving a biographical sketch of either of them as President of the United States.

Millard Fillmore

(THIRTEENTH PRESIDENT.)

Millard Fillmore, being elected Vice-President to President Taylor, became his constitutional successor, and served the unexpired term from 1850 to 1853. Very exciting questions arose during his term of office: among them the slavery question, the admission of California into the Union as a free State, and the passage of the Fugitive Slave Law—providing for the return to their owners of slaves escaping to a free State. During the debate of these questions, for a while it seemed as if the Union would be rent asunder. Mr. Fillmore treated them with dignity, if not with statesmanship, till finally conciliatory measures prevailed, and the questions were amicably settled. In every respect Mr. Fillmore discharged the duties of President as a conscientious, sensible man, thoroughly acquainted with legislative and general political principles.

President Fillmore was born in Cayuga county, New York, January 7, 1800, and died March 9, 1874. He had not a very liberal education, and, when young, served as an apprentice to the fuller's trade. In the year 1821, he was admitted to the bar, and practiced law with success. From 1832 to 1840 he was a member of Congress; in 1842 he was nominated by the Whigs of New York for Governor, and was defeated; and in 1856 the Native American party run him for President, and he received only the electoral vote of Maryland.

Upon the death of President Taylor, the entire Cabinet resigned.

Patent Office, Washington, D. C. The Patent Office covers two squares, from 7th to 9th streets, and from F to G streets, northwest. It measures 410 feet from east to west and 275 feet from north to south. The building was commenced in 1837, and was not entirely completed, as it now stands, until 1864. It cost $2,700,000. In this building are many articles which belonged to Gen. Washington possessing historical interest, and here is to be seen the original Declaration of Independence. Here, also, are on exhibition, all the models of every patent issued since 1836. Those issued prior to that time were destroyed by fire in the destruction of the old building. Those destroyed were the accumulation of 46 years.

John Tyler

(TENTH PRESIDENT.)

John Tyler was born in Charles City county, Virginia, March 20, 1790, and died at Richmond, Va., January 17, 1862. He studied law, and was elected to Congress in 1816, and served some five years; was elected U. S. Senator in 1827; re-elected in 1833, and was President of the Peace Convention at Washington in 1861.

Mr. Tyler became President upon the death of Mr. Harrison as his constitutional successor as Vice President of the United States. John Tyler was in early life a great admirer of Henry Clay, and is said to have wept with sorrow when the whigs in convention rejected his favorite candidate for the Presidency, and selected Harrison. He was nominated Vice-President by a unanimous vote, and was a great favorite with his party. In the popular refrain, "Tippecanoe and Tyler too," the people sung praises to him as heartily as to Harrison himself. The death of Harrison and the succession of Tyler, was the first instance of the kind in our history.

Tyler's administration was not successful. He opposed the measures of his party, and made free use of the veto power. His former political friends denounced him as a renegade, to which he replied that he had never professed to endorse the measures which he opposed. The feeling increased in bitterness. All his cabinet, except Webster, resigned. He was, however, nominated by a convention composed chiefly of office-holders, for the next Presidency; he accepted, but, finding no popular support, soon withdrew from the canvass. In 1861 he became the presiding officer of the peace convention in Washington. All efforts at reconciliation proving futile, he renounced his allegiance to the United States and followed the Confederate fortunes. He died in Richmond, where he was in attendance as a member of the Confederate Congress.

Post-Office Department, Washington, D. C. The building occupies the whole square between 7th and 9th and E and F streets, northwest, and is opposite the Patent Office. It is built of white marble. It measures 300 feet north and south, and 204 feet east and west. Its cost up to 1876, $1,855,980 59. A portion of the present site was originally intended for a hotel, the corner stone for which was laid in 1793 but failing to complete the building, it was put up at a lottery and was drawn by two orphan children. It was here the first theatrical entertainment was given in Washington. In 1810 it was bought by the Government. December 15, 1836, it was destroyed by fire, and in 1849 the erection of the present building was commenced.

MRS. L. J. STETLER,

PROPRIETRESS

Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C.—This building is constructed of red freestone, and has numerous towers. Its length from east to west is 447 feet, and breadth including carriage porch, 160 feet. The corner stone was laid in 1847, and the building completed in 1856. It cost $450,000. The Institution is a bequest, of James Smithson, an English gentleman, who bequeathed $46,000 for the construction of the building. Here are deposited collections of all the exploring expeditions of the United States, besides all other sorts of curiosities, which would require weeks to examine.

United States Capitol Washington, D. C. The corner-stone of the Capitol was laid with Masonic ceremonies, September 18, 1793, by Master Mason George Washington President of the United States. In 1814 the British burned all the two wings. The space now occupied by the rotunda up to that period was only a wooden scaffolding, which united the two portions of the building. The foundation of the present Rotunda was laid March 2, 1818, and was considered finished in 1827. The corner-stone of the extension was laid July 4, 1851. The cost of the Capitol up to the present time has been $14,000,000. The whole Capitol covers an area of three and a half acres.

The Home of Washington's Ancestors.—The Manor House, Sulgrave, Northamptonshire, which was held of the Priory of St. Andrew, was surrendered to the Crown upon the dissolution of the Monasteries, and in the 30th of Henry VIII. (1529), it was granted to Lawrence Washington, gent of Northampton. Robert Washington, his son and heir, conjointly with his eldest son Lawrence, sold the manor in 1610 to Lawrence Makepeace, gent of the Inner Temple, London. Lawrence Washington, after the sale of his estate, retired to Brington, where he died; and his second son, John Washington, emigrated to America about the middle of the 17th century, and was grandfather of the great American patriot and father of his country, George Washington.—[Extract from Wm. W. Neilan & Co.'s History of Northamptonshire.]
